

Participate in research

We need your insights!

Help improve wellbeing and prevent suicide among Australian doctors and doctors-in-training

We want to hear from you about your wellbeing, working life, and what your mental health service needs and priorities are. Your voice will help shape the mental health and suicide prevention support provided to doctors in Australia.

What is involved?

Researchers at UNSW and the Black Dog Institute are conducting a confidential online survey asking doctors and doctors-in-training about:

- Their mental health and help-seeking
- Their workplace environment and work stress
- Their service needs and priorities regarding mental health support and suicide prevention

The survey will take approximately 20–30 minutes to complete. If you complete the survey, you can opt in to enter a prize draw to win a $200 e-gift card.

Who can take part?

People who are:

- Currently working as a medical doctor or doctor-in-training in Australia
- Over 18 years old and have good English language skills

How can I find out more?

If you are interested and would like more information, use the link below. You'll also have a chance to ask the research team any questions you have, or contact Chief Investigator Dr Katherine Petrie at katherine.petrie@unsw.edu.au

How can I take part?

Participation in the study is voluntary. If you decide you want to take part in the research study, you will be asked to:

- Read the information carefully at the link below (ask questions by contacting the research team if necessary);
- Complete the online Consent Form;
- Complete the online questionnaire.

To take the survey, click on the link below:

<https://redcap.unsw.edu.au/surveys/?s=3HNCJDL7XXWTJTM4>